

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary is a misuse of the public trust and domain. I thought there was a requirement for media outlets using free airwaves to be equitable and balanced - this is neither.

The FCC is so concerned about decency on its airwaves, where they won't tolerate so much as a fraction of what other civilized societies tolerate on airwaves - yet they are willing to compromise and allow the public trust to be jeopardized by predatory and unbalanced practice. "Free speech for me but not for thee", utilizing the free and public domain is reproachable.
